Camp Autumn Receives Donation from Iowa Great Lakes Fishing Club

Spencer, IA – Camp Autumn received a donation of fishing supplies from the Iowa Great Lakes Fishing Club. The therapeutic day camp, located in O'Brien County, is home to a 30 acre lake, where many of the outdoor camp activities, like fishing, will take place.

The Iowa Great Lakes Fishing Club donated 25 rods and reels with tackle, as well as fully-stocked tackle bags. The club is also planning to volunteer at the camp and maintain the fishing supplies throughout the summer.

"We are so excited to have the support of the Iowa Great Lakes Fishing Club in helping our Camp Autumn children learn about fishing," said Kim Scorza, CEO/President of Seasons Center. "Fishing is a great way to practice skills of relaxation, problem solving, and promotes positive peer interactions. Through the generous gifts of fishing equipment some of our youth will be able to experience fishing for the first time which is absolutely wonderful!"

The fishing club's mission states that it, "strives to provide recreational and educational activities to support the improvement of our fishers, recruitment of youth and adults to the sport, and to promote positive contributions to the environment and our community."

"Our club is all about getting young people into fishing," said Terry Thomsen, Vice President of the Iowa Great Lakes Fishing Club. "The future of our fishing hobby lies with the youth."
