ESTHERVILLE – Seasons Center for Behavioral Health was awarded $1,500 for therapeutic resources from the Emmet County Community Foundation. The resources, including therapy toys and wellness resources, will be used by outpatient therapists in the Estherville office in order to continue to provide updated evidence-based tools when working with children and families.

“Season Center is thankful for the resources provided with this grant,” said Jared Ball, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Therapist at Seasons Center. “We hope to better serve the residents of Emmet County by improving the services we offer and utilizing this award to acquire resources needed to expand our care.”

The materials and curriculum to be purchased have been proven to be effective in helping individuals with mental health and substance abuse issues.
